LEGAL PAPERS ANCIENT DATES BROUGHT HERE

(By Associated Press)

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 2.—What is described as one of the most important collections of ancient documents yet discovered, consisting of more than 100 legal papers dating from the reigns of the Roman emperors Augustus, Tiberius, Caligula and Claudius, has been brought here by Professor Francis W. Kelsey of the University of Michigan. Professor Kelsey spent some time in Egypt in search of records. The collection is held to be important because it reveals the life of the people during the early Christian era.

The records obtained by Professor Kelsey constitute a part of the files of a record office in or near Tebtunis, Egypt, and were discovered four months ago. They are written on papyrus and are chiefly in Greek, a few being Demotic. They are believed to have been covered with sand soon after the record office fell and with few exceptions are preserved perfectly.

The earliest record dated 7 A. D. and bears the signature of a woman who agreed not to bring claim against her brothers. Another record of the same period, is a contract of common law marriage.

Among the other records are contracts of sale covering both personal and real property, including lands, vineyards and houses. There also are leases, agreements regarding loans, a contract of indemnity, receipts for wages, a receipt for dowry, documents relating to transferring ownership of slaves and part of a registry of deeds.

What is held to be the most important record is in the form of a roll, more than seven feet long and written on both sides. It is said to be a perfect example of an ancient book or scroll of the kind mentioned in the Bible, particularly in the Book of Revelations. The scroll, dating 42 A. D., contains on one side abstracts of a number of contracts and on the other is a registry of the contracts, written in the record office of the second year of Emperor Claudius.

Between 10 and 15 years will be required to decipher all of the records and to explain them in their relation to Roman history, according to Professor Kelsey. The University professor declared there could be no question as to the authenticity of the records.

Another collection brought to the university by the professor includes a papyrus book of 12 leaves in which are written the incantations and formulas used by a master magician. There are charms and curses for various occasions, one being a love charm. In the prayers God and the angels are invoked as well as the pagan deities of Egypt.

THE NEW COATS SAY "WE AIM TO PLEASE"

"WE AIM to please" appears to be the motto that has governed the makers of our wraps for the coming winter season, for they have presented several distinctive styles in coats. You may choose a voluminous wrap, wide and full, or a cape-coat, wholly concealing the outlines of the figure, or a slim affair with snug-fitting hip line and long, bloused body, or a first cousin to the dolman or just an ample coat, but in all of them there is the flavor of the new season.

The materials used, however, are the same as those of last year or their direct descendants with new names, perhaps. Velours, chinchilla, bolivia, marvella, camel's-hair, cheviot and velvet will account for the coats for day-time wear, at least, with velvet, like fur, doing service for both day and evening. Fur has been appropriated by all materials and on most of them is found in the company of embroidery, but the embroidery is used in novel ways, and new collars and sleeves seem to increase the importance of fur trimming. The handsome coat pictured shows how effectively it is used to finish off the full, bell sleeves and to make the new, straight high collar. This model is of velours with broad embroidery.

DEPRESSION OF SHIP INTEREST EGYPT PASSING

(By Associated Press)
CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 2. Signs of a commercial revival are seen by business and shipping communities in Egypt. After months of depression, they say, there has come a healthier tone of confidence and optimism which is most encouraging. The feeling prevails among the business interests that the late fall will see the country back to normal and healthy trade.

The Egyptian public is wearying of the discussions of the country's future political status and is showing far more interest in the price of cotton which is the barometer of commercial activity.

Throughout the spring and summer, the large hold-over from last year's cotton crop acted as a damper on the business community which feared a further restriction

GERMANS SEEM WILLING MINE FRENCH COAL

(By Associated Press)

LONDON, Nov. 2.—Whiting Williams, formerly vice-president of the Hydraulic Steel company of Cleveland, Ohio, who had spent several years studying the labor problem by working as a laborer in England and America, worked all last summer as a student in the mines and steel plants of France and the Sarre. While on a visit to London he has just given some interesting information about the German miners who are working for French owners and officials in that territory now under French control as a result of the war. Mr. Williams stated he expected to find considerable unwillingness to produce coal for the benefit of the French, but he found no such thing.

The German miners, he said, are receiving in France the equivalent of more than twice the number of marks received by German miners in the Ruhr district. They are earning immensely more than the iron and steel workers in German companies.

"The German miner is the cock of the whole industrial walk in the Sarre," said Mr. Williams.

"A number of German workers confided in me as a mining student working along with them that they were better paid and better treated than when the mines were operated by Prussian state officials. It seems to me entirely probable that the plebiscite to be taken by the Sarre population about 13 years hence will make the Sarre either French or neutral, like Luxembourg."

Mr. Williams reports that unemployment seems considerably less in France than in Great Britain or America. He attributes this in part to the fact that 800,000 French workers are still under arms.

In Germany, he said, the wages have hardly kept up with the 1000 per cent increase in the cost of living. People such as teachers, small property holders, federal employees and those in the railway and postal office service have been "terribly hard hit" because their wages have hardly increased more than 500 per cent.

FREIGHTING OUTFIT IS LATE ROYSTON ARRIVAL

Word was received in Tonopah today that a transportation outfit consisting of seven trucks arrived at Royston in the San Antonio district yesterday from California, and announced that they would make that camp their headquarters with a view of securing freighting and ore hauling contracts.
